WHEN SUSTAINABILITY MEETS AESTHETICS

Interior designs made of natural wood from TEAM 7

Holistic living with wood is currently experiencing a real renaissance. There are many reasons for this: The natural material combines timeless beauty with durability, healthy living with sustainability and is therefore becoming increasingly popular in modern interior design. With its comprehensive expertise in wood, TEAM 7 enables the design of complete interior architectures - customised and tailored to personal preferences. This results in individual room concepts that combine a clear design language and natural aesthetics.

Contemporary living is characterised by flowing transitions between living areas and well thought-out concepts that run through the entire home. This creates a feeling of openness and space. At the same time, the finely balanced use of materials and elements creates harmony and familiarity. Wood promotes this special spatial effect with its warm, inviting radiance, lively texture and unmistakable feel. Holistic, coherent interior designs of this kind are one of the core competences of TEAM 7. The company from Ried im Innkreis realises consistent designs across all living areas - in different types of wood and custom-made according to individual customer requirements.

Customised variety

This includes wooden fixtures that extend from the kitchen to the living area and bedroom. Dressing rooms and customised home office solutions can also be produced, for example - even libraries that extend over several galleries and thus become an architectural eye-catcher. In this way, the vibrant beauty of natural wood is emphasised in a multi-faceted way. With counters, extension and side tables, wall units, display cabinets, sideboards and variable shelving systems, the natural material skilfully combines different elements to create elegant transitions. Natural wood panels also expand the creative scope. They set architectural accents with vertical or horizontal grain and offer numerous planning options as wall design elements as well as for the design of modular living walls.

Perfection in detail

The fact that such details are crucial to creating an impression of continuity and uniformity is emphasised by the continuous grain patterns that TEAM 7 makes possible for the fronts of its carcass furniture. This creates extremely artistic, harmonious wood patterns that continue seamlessly across several panels. In the exclusive walnut wood type, such grain patterns can even be planned up to a length of four metres - an art that only the manufacturer from Upper Austria has mastered. The range is also available for the tak and magnum extendable tables: here, the table tops and inserts are offered in oak and walnut with a continuous grain, which means that the elegant wood appearance of the tables is completely retained even when extended.

Various hardwoods are available to emphasise the natural wood aesthetic throughout the room: Alder, beech, oak, walnut and cherry and their respective variations impress with light and dark nuances, with the characteristic grains and colour spectra giving each type of wood its own special identity. The wood elements can optionally be complemented by materials such as natural stone, ceramic and coloured glass - creating exciting contrasts that deliberately contrast and complement the homogeneous wood look.

Unrivalled wood expertise

In addition to the high standards of design and functionality, it is above all the craftsmanship and unique wood expertise that characterise TEAM 7. As a result, the family-run company always succeeds in exploiting the aesthetic potential of the natural material in all its dimensions - be it with an accentuated use of material or fine thicknesses of just a few millimetres. TEAM 7 products correspond to carpentry work in their degree of individualisation, but go far beyond this in their overall design art, functionality and spatial effect. Each piece of furniture is manufactured by highly qualified specialists who combine traditional craftsmanship with modern engineering skills and are supported by high-tech production processes. In order to guarantee this special quality, vertical integration and freedom of planning, the manufacturer keeps the entire value chain in its own hands: from the careful selection of high-quality wood to the sawn timber from the sawmill and panel production according to its own requirements - right through to the final product.

Support from TEAM 7 professionals

Anyone who favours holistic living with wood for their home can rely on the experience of the professionals from the TEAM 7 stores: Using the latest planning software, they simulate a wide variety of interior designs and also offer full support, for example in choosing the right textiles, the ideal wall design and a harmonious lighting concept. At the end of the joint process is reliable delivery and installation. Through close personal dialogue, TEAM 7 helps people to design a home in which no wish is left unconsidered.
